Contract Types Decision Guide

Using The Decision Guide

The Contract Types Decision Guide was created by the TMA Procurement Support office for the TMA program offices. It is designed to provide a starting point for a dialogue with your acquisition manager about a suitable contract type for your procurement. Although the Guide is consistent with federal regulations concerning contract types, it should not be considered the authoritative source for contract type selection. Consult your Acquisition Manager for assistance in finalizing an acquisition strategy. The Contracting Officer for your procurement will make the final decision as to contract type.

Contract type selection is only one part of acquisition planning. To gain the most from this guide, you should already have a clear idea of the requirements, an understanding of the cost to complete the procurement, and funding. If you do not have a clear understanding of the "what" and the "how much", refer to the AMD Desktop Reference for assistance in these two areas.

When given the option to disable or enable macros, users should select "enable macros" in order to take full advantage of the tool.
